6 PRESENTATIONS

A brief summary of the presentations is given below.

CSCS UPDATE – The competence scheme is changing: what, when, why and how?

Gordon Jenkins, CSCS

Gordon gave an overview of recent and upcoming changes to CSCS and what they mean to people working in resin flooring. The developments include the introduction of a formal knowledge based qualification for entry level green cards and acceptance of certain degrees, HNDs and other academic qualifications for the new CSCS AQP card.

QUARTZ AND QUARTZ ARE DIFFERENT, formulated filler systems for resin flooring

Harald Maul Msc, Gebrüder Dorfner GMBH & Co

The differences between quartz sands and the importance of selecting the optimum filler system for the project in hand were explained by Harald. Along with resin products and application technology, aggregates and fillers are an important factor in achieving the right technical properties, consistency on the building site and significantly for bringing down costs.

THINK SAFE IN 2013

Andy Mclachlan, Stallard Kane

In this light hearted session Andy explored how the Oil & Gas industry in The USA have dramatically reduced accidents by getting their work force to “think safe”. This common sense approach steps away from preaching law and legislation, having a much deeper impact on the mindset of a workforce can and will reduce accidents within your business giving you reduced down time and reduced costs through silly accidents.

FLOORED BY TAINT - how sensory testing can help grow your business

Susan Rogers, Campden BRI

Implementing a sensory taint testing programme to ensure your flooring systems do not have the potential to taint is recommended if your products are to be considered food industry friendly. Susan provided a brief outline of the principles and practices of sensory taint testing at Campden BRI.
