WM3 – What it Means For You

- A fundamental change to chemical classification
- Applicable to transport of waste as well as waste classification
- This is a change led by the EU and not driven by the EA
- WM3 applies across whole UK
- Revised chemical labelling is needed and updated COSHH data needs to be supplied / prepared

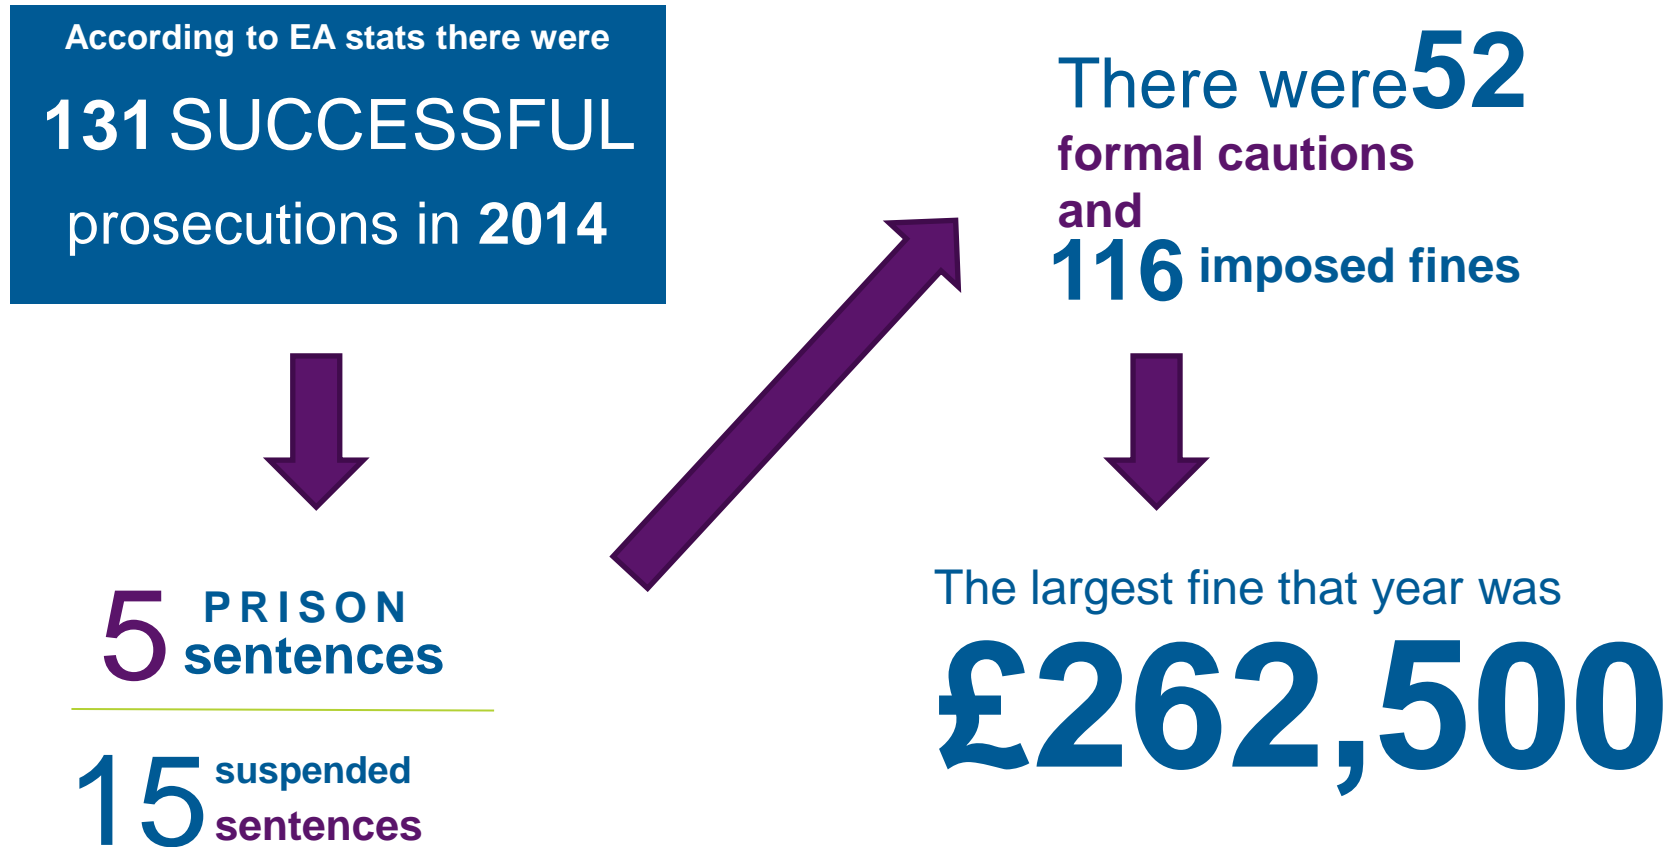

In Layman's Terms...

- Waste previously classified as non-hazardous – such as packaging containing hazardous materials – may now be classified differently
- In most instances, it needs to be disposed of as hazardous waste
- As such, it can no longer go in general waste skips
- Whilst this will increase your waste disposal costs the cost of doing nothing can be far greater

The Real Cost of Non-Compliance

So How Can Reconomy Help?

- Dedicated account management to make your life easier
- National rate card agreed for FeRFA members
- Industry leading compliance and data reporting platform
- Specialist team to manage and advise on Technical & Hazardous wastes and compliance
